CABLEORGANIZER.COM offers the P3 Kill A Watt PS power strip to help track the efficiency of electronic equipment while protecting it from power surges and spikes. The power-monitoring device on the strip displays energy usage in kilowatt hours, as well as voltage, line frequency, amperage, and leakage on a backlit LCD screen, allowing users to determine energy efficiency of individual appliances and to calculate and estimate their overall electrical costs. The strip also features six standard-sized outlets and two extra-wide outlets for large plugs, a 6-foot cord, and advanced surge-protection circuitry. Price: $99.95. http://cableorganizer.com.

NUMONICS has improved upon its PI-1500 model to bring you the PI-1900 LCD tablet monitor. When connected to a computer, the 19-inch monitor becomes the desktop and the electronic pen functions as a mouse, allowing the user to navigate any Windows-based program with ease in a presentation setting. The PI-1900 features adjustable viewing and writing angles and a resolution of 1,000 lines per inch, and comes with Numonics' Presentation Tools and Virtual Whiteboard software for tasks such as drawing, note-taking, and lesson plan development. Price: $2,095. www.numonics.com.

MINDPLAY introduces Reading Analysis & Prescription System 360, a tool for diagnosing a full spectrum of reading difficulties faced by students in grades 1 to 10 and targeting appropriate interventions. Besides gauging a student's reading proficiency and helping improve it, RAPS 360 produces progress reports on student performance within an entire school district, a school, or a class, or at the individual level. The tool also produces summary reports for parents that include recommendations for home activities to help children meet reading goals. It's available as a subscription-based internet service, a LAN or WAN server application, or a standalone application for a single computer. Price: Based on configuration type and total number of connections needed. www.mindplay.com.
